The case of Benkard & Hutton vs. ex-Collector Schell. The case of Benkard & Hutton vs. ex-Collector Schell, which was commenced several days ago in the United States Circuit Court before Judge Smalley, was given to the jury yesterday. The plaintiffs are large importers in this city, and they claim to recover the difference between nineteen and twenty-four per cent ad volorem duty on mouseline delaines, which duty they allege was an excess. They further claim that mouseline delaines are worsted goods, or should be classed as such, under the section of the Tariff act imposing nineteen per cent; but the goods imported by the plaintiffs were assessed at twenty-four per cent, under a section of the act which states that delaines should be classed with articles made of cotton. The case was tried everal years ago. On that occasion there was a disa-reement of the jury, eleven being for the plaintiffs and me for the government. The amount involved is about eventy-five thousand dollars, and the result in this case rill decide several other suits of a similar character. UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT-CRIMINAL TERM.

Absent Jurors-The Wallkill National Bank Defalcation.

The May criminal term of the United States Circult Court was opened before Judge Benedict yesterday. The panel of petit jurors was called, but only seventeen of the whole number were in attendance. The criminal the whole number were in attendance. The criminal calendar was not called; it will be called to-day, and the calendar was not called; it will be called to-day, and the Court ordered the non-attending jurors to show cause why they should not be fined in the sum of $150 cach. On the motion of Mr. Bliss. United States District Attorney, nolle prosequis were entered in the following cases:—Willett Ferruson, perjury: Nicholas Dall, false income returns: William M. Graham, embezzling itunds of the Wallkill Bank; Simon Donau, Marcus Newman and others, conspiracy to defraud; Anton Hupfel, liegally drawing beer at the Morrisania distillery; Bernard Hess, personating a revenue officer.

The number of nolle prosequis entered was twenty nine. There were fifty-five exonerations in cases where recornizances had been wacasted and the bondsmen of detendants released from their bonds.

The indictment against William M. Graham for embezzling tunds belonging to the Wallkill National Bank is an old one, but a new one has been found against Mr. Graham, and it is understood that he will be tried upon it during the present term of the Court, A similar chark will apply to the indictment against Simon Donau and others, upon which a not, pros. has been entered. They also will be tried upon a new indictment, charging them with conspiring to defraud the government.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

The New Indictments Against Tweed-The Clark Habeas Corpus Case-Leavy, the Wife-Murderer, Sent to the State Lunatic Asylum-A Barroom Homicide. Before Judge Davis.

Before Judge Davis.

The expected long drawn out argument upon the question whether William M. Tweed shall plead or not to the batch of fifteen indictments found against him by the late Grand Jury did not take place yesterday morning, greatly to the disappointment, doubtless, of the large crowd in attendance. The counsel, who were presenting the product of the product and the pro full force, talked over the matter among themselves, and finally it was concluded, as a matter of accommodation to some of them having causes to try in other Courts, to postpone the argument till this morning. THE MOTHER AND HER CHILD.

Having put off the Tweed case, the Court took up the dispute over Frank Clark between his mother and his foster parents, which was before the Court on Tuesday.

Mrs. Horey gave her story to the Court, which was to the effect that she received the child to nurse, with a promise of $12 per month, of which but a smail part had been paid. The mother had practically abandoned the child for ne mother had been mother, and it was also asserted that Mr, and Mrs. Horey had concealed themselves, leading to the offer by Mrs. Clark of a reward of $50 for their discovery. An arrangement had been made by which part of the money for the keening of the child should be paid and the rest secured, but the respondents refused to complete it. Judge Davis adjourned the case till to-morrow, saying that perhaps an arrangement would be made in the meantime. He should inquire into the charges against the mother, and if he found them true should certainty not give a child to her care. The child will remain in its present custody until a decision is rendered.

Patrick Leavy was tried on a charge of killing his wife, the indictment against him being manishing her in the first degree. He was defended by Mr. Abe H. Hummel, who put in a decince of insanity, and, as the result provided and the action of insanity and, as the result provided and the statement was that a principal witness in the case. Judge Davis charged briefly, defining insanity and reviewing some of the salient points of the evidence.

so that some disposition might be made of him for the future.

Mr. Howe said that it would be an act of mercy to send the poor man to an asylum.

Judge Davis called in Dr. Doran and ordered an examination of Leavy to be made in an adjoining room, and the prisoner and doctor retired for the purpose. In alsout ten minutes the pair entered the contrioon, and the physician pronounced Leavy still insane. An order was then issued by the Court consigning the patient to the State Lunauce Asylum at Utica.

James Lawlor, a young man, was next called up for frial. He is charged with having so injured John Dorrington, on the 16th of has December, in a liquor saicon at the corner of Washneton and Spring streets, that he did not be a superficient of the superficient of the superficient of the superficient of the superficient in the superficient of the superficient did not be superficient did not

After a brief opening by Mr. Rollins Alonzo Eirkpatrick was called as a witness. He testined that he went into Mr. Olmstead's liquor salcon between four and five o'clock on the morning of the loin oi last December; as he entered the room the deceased was lying on the floor and the prisoner was standing over him; he heard the deceased say, "Don't kill me!" the prisoner got up to his feet, and, being very intoxicated, stumbled against a stove and fell, when he clutched the prisoner around the leg; the prisoner seized a pewter pitcher from the bar and struck three blows, one hitting the bar, the second the deceased on the back and the third on his head; after this the prisoner go up and went out on the street and lay down there some ten minutes, when he was taken to the station house.

On his cross-examination he stated that the prisoner and deceased had been previously triends; that the prisoner and deceased or at the time of the difficulty between them and the deceased very drunk, and that the vest and shirt of the prisoner were very much torn in the struggle be tween them.

At this stage of the case the Court, ewing to Judge Davis having to sit in General Term, adjourned till this morning, when the trial will be resumed.

"You are a common person, a mean man, a thief and I can prove it," and that in consequence he was greatly injured in his good name and credit. Some considerable controversy was had as to the proper definition of this word, but it was finally set at reach by Dr. Merkle, a gentleman thoroughly familiar with the German and the English language, being put upon the stand. According to Dr. Merkle the meaning of the word depends entirely upon the sense in which it is used, running all the way up the scale from "sharpfellow" to "murderer," and touching in its ascent upon 'thing' and "robber," a celebrated unpronounceable highwayman of the last century having been even dignified by that title. The plaintiff called a former customer to show that injury had been inflicted upon him, while defendant contended that the whole thing was got up to make money easy during the dulines of trade. After the summing up of counsel the Court charged the jury at length as to the law of libel. At the opening of the Court yesterday ex-Judge Beach and Mr. Charles Brooke, counsel for William Sharkey, indicted for murder in the first degree, moved a post-ponement of the trial in consequence of important professional engagements. Assistant District Attorney Russell followed in as an effective an argument as was ever made in the General Seasions, in which he not only brought out all the strong circumstances established by the witnesses for the prosecution, but in a humorous and sarcastle strain criticised the testimony for the defence.

Judge Sutherland delivered a lengthy charge, and passed upon a number of propositions which Mr. Howe requested him to charge. Robbing a Roommate. Charles Pierson and a man named Terence Foley were rooming together at 1,263 Broadway, and on the 11th of May Foley rose at a very early hour and left. Shortly after his departure Pierson missed a gold watch and chain, worth $30, and $17 in money. He suspected Foley and immediately went in search of him. He learned that Foley had been arrested for intoxication, and sent to the Island for ten days. A watch and chain found on the person of Foley at the time of his arrest were identified by Pierson as the latter's property. Foley was brought down from the Island and committed to answer at the General Sessions by Judge Dowling in detault of $1,000.

LUSIGNANI'S LAST NIGHT.

Preparations for the Execution To-Day-The Prisoner's Calm Cheerfulness and Noble Religious Fortitude-Affecting Scene in the Condemned Cell.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., May 14, 1873.

The preparations for the execution of Luigi Lusignani, the Italian wife muraerer, have been all completed, and everything is in readiness for the closing scene in the dread tragedy. The excitement in the town is intense, and among all classes of people the intensest commisseration is felt for the fate of the poor Italian. Now that his end is approaching, sympathy is willingly extended to him, and it is generally felt that the many ex-tenuating circumstances which surrounded his crime should have lessened his punishment and saved him from an ignominious death. To-day.

of Lusignani, was devoted by him to prayer and devotion. By every means in his power he strives to prepare himself for his approach-ing end, and he listened eagerly to the spiritual advice and consolation tendered him by Father Vassalo, an Italian priest from Orange, who has, since the death sentence was passed, been unremitting in his attention to his unfortunate countryman. The stories which have been published in the local papers about the reckless demeanor and profane language of the reckless demeanor and profane language of the prisoner are nearly all incorrect, the bright attaches of the local lights, mistaking the natural gayety and light-heartedness of the Southern race for unconcern and hard-heartedness.

THE SCENE IN THE CELL of the Italian to-night was peculiarly affecting. In company with Father Vassalo the reporter of the Herald was permitted to have an interview with the prisoner, and the calm resignation and courage displayed by the latter was the theme of general praise.

with the prisoner, and the calm resignation and courage displayed by the latter was the theme of general praise.

Lusignani was dressed in deep black and wore a white rose in his buttonhole. His lace was deadly pale, but he displayed no appearance of trepidation and was more apparently cooler than any other person in the cell. He recognized the Heraldo reporter, having seen him before, and warmly greeted him. There was nothing of the bravado about Lusignani, his conduct being perfectly natural and self-possessed. In answer to a question from the reporter he stated that he was PERFECTLY RECONCILED TO DIE and had no fear of the future. While saying this he grasped the hand of Father Vassalo and exclaimed, "No one who is a good Catholic is airaid to die."

He then stated that the stories which had been whilehed about him in the local names were claimed, "No one who is a good Catholic is airaid to die."

He then stated that the stories which had been published about him in the local papers were entirely false; that he had indulged in no profanity, and never had any intention of starving himself to death. The only objection he made to his food was on last Friday morning, when he objected to eating the half-cooked meat which was set before him. He very naturally refuses to eat the prison fare so long as he has the opportunity of partaking of the more dainty viands which are freely provided for him.

This morning Father Vassalo, on visiting the prison, asked Lusignani what he would like to eat, and he replied that he wished to have some Italian soup and beefsteak, which were provided for him. He are sparingly, but he was considerably refreshed and talked cheerfully with the persons who came to visit him.

When the reporter was bidding Lusignani good night the latter was visibly Appected but showed no signs of shrinking. Father Vassalo and Father Ronaldo will remain in the cell with the prisoner all through the night. The last offices of the Church will be administered about nine o'clock in the morning, and the prisoner will be escorted to the scaffold by Father Vassalo and the pastor of the parish. The gallows is erected right in the rear of the prisoner's cell, but a screen conceals it from his view.

The Court House in the morning will be surrounded with special constables, and no person who is not provided with a pass will be aumitted. About one hundred and twenty-five passes have been issued, but applications by the thousand have been made, which the Sherin has been, of course, compelled to refuse. The execution will take place at eleven o'clock, and, when life is extinct, the body will be cut down and interred in the Catholic graveyard.

TREMBLING IN THE BALANCE.

Argument in the Case of Nixon Yester. day in the Supreme Court, General Term-A Decision To Be Given This Morning-Resignation and Demeanor of the Condemned Man-His Spiritual Attendants-The Preparations for His Expected Execution.

Nixon's indefatigably faithful and persevering counsel, Mr. Wilham F. Howe, is still using his utmost endeavors to obtain for his client a lengthened lease of life. With this view he made application yesterday before the Supreme Court, General Term, Judges Ingraham and Davis on the bench, for a hearing in the case.

Judge Ingraham said that if the intention was to apply for a stay of proceedings the Court could not entertain such application, but that if it was the desire of Mr. Howe to argue the case upon exceptions taken at the trial they would hear the argument upon a writ of error.

Mr. A. H. Hummel, the associate of Mr. Howe, on this announcement, accompan Lyons, Assistant District Attorney, at once went before Judge Fancher, sitting in Supreme Court, Chambers, and upon stating the case to the latter Judge he promptly granted a writ of error, Mr. Lyons meantime having moved the preliminary notice usually required in such cases. Mr. Howe announced to the Court the procure-

Mr. Howe announced to the Court the procurement of the writ of error and thereupon the Court—and certainly it would seem an act of very kind consideration under the circumstances—suspended all other business before it and listened to Mr. Howe's argument. He spoke at great length and nost ably and leelingly. The points of his argument were the same, though elaborated at more eloquent length, as in his argument before Judge Barrett, which was published in full in the Herald. His exceptions, it will be remembered, were, first, to the panel; second, to a portion of the evidence, and third, to the remembered, were, first, to the panel; second, to a portion of the evidence, and third, to the remembered, were, first, to the panel; second, to a portion of the evidence, and third, to the remembered, were, first, to the panel; second, to a portion of the evidence, and third, to the remembered, were, first, to the panel; second, to a portion of the evidence, and third, to the remember of Judge Brady to charge one of his recuests bearing upon the question of doubt as to any specific facts. In the course of his remarks, however, he paid a high compliment to Judge Brady, and said that no man ever received a fairer trial than that given to Nixon. In connection with his own points he also submitted those given by ex-Major A. Oakey Hall in his argument before Judge Pratt, of Brooklyn, which points have likewise been published in juli in the Herald. The legal ability displayed in these points, he said, could not be gamsaid, and, discarding his own leeble efforts in the case, he felt assured that they would have a controlling and, he hoped, lavorable influence upon the minds of the Court.

Art be conclusion of the argument Judge Ingraham said that they would give their decision this morning.

APPLICATION TO OTHER JUDGES.

In order to leave no stone unturned, Mr. Howe has within the past two days applied for a stay of proceedings in Nixon's case before Judges Miller and Judge in the same line of Albany, and Judge ingalis, of Troy, ment of the writ of error and thereupon the Court-

CONSUL GENERAL GARSIA.

No. 151 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, May 13, 1873. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:In your issue of to-day Mr. E. C. B. Garsia, Consul General here for Uruguay, states that his acceptances of the drafts of McKay & Aldus (which drafts, by the way, were paid by said firm on the day after maturity and which he permitted to go to protest) were simply accommodation accept-ances, to meet which no money ever came into his hands; that their claim against him was apparently ignored when, in 1868, they went into bankruptcy, ignored when, in 1868, they went into bankruptcy, and that a suit commenced, in 1871, in the New York Supreme Court has never resulted in showing that he owes the money named in said drafts.

Unfortunately for Mr. Garsia, he fell into the habit of writing letters years ago, many of which relating to the draits in question are now in our possession, and their contents vary awkwardly enough from anything like accommodation, except to Mr. Garsia; and these, combined with the other evidence in the case, on which latter alone Judge Elatchiore, whose caution is well known, found abundant ground for ordering Mr. Garsia's arrest, make matters look rather damaging for him.

As to the bankruptcy omission, Hon. Dwight Foster, of Massachusetts, one of the assignees, called several times, as his affidavit will show, on Mr. Garsia, asking him to pay, and the latter expressed a willingness to him to confess judgment if he desired it. The action also referred to was discontinued by Mr. McKay's former counsel for want of jurisdiction, the United States Courts alone having power to try suits against consuls.

YACHTING.

Launch of the Schooner Yacht Ariel—Her

Dimensions and Accommodations. The handsome schooner yacht Ariel, built by Messrs. Poillon Brothers, foot of Bridge street, Brooklyn, for Commodore William L. Swan, of the Seawanhaka Yacht Club, was successfully launched yesterday morning in the presence of a large number of delighted spectators. By ten o'clock the workmen of the vard stood in readiness to co mence knocking away the shores; but the word to workmen of the yard stood in readiness to commence knocking away the shores; but the word to begin this preliminary business was not passed until several minutes later, when, being continued with alacrity, the gallant eraft, aimid a prolonged shout from those on board, gracefully dipped to her proper element at eighteen minutes of eleven o'clock, a friend of the owner naming her at the opportune moment.

It will be remembered that the Ariel was constructed after the model of the schooner yacht Clio, built at the same yard this season for Messrs. Asten & Bradburst, and there is every reason to believe that she will possess all that Mr. Swan desires—speed and weatherly qualities. Although before published in the Herald, it is not now amiss to give the dimensions of this yacht, which are as follows:—Length of keel, 52 feet; length on water line. 57 feet 6 inches; length on deck, 62 feet; length over all, 70 feet; breath of beam, 18 feet 7 inches; depth of hold, 6 feet. The frame is of white eak and hackmatack, the planking of oak and the deck of white pine. All the materials used in her construction are of the best possible kind, and much heavier than is usually put in pleasure vessels of her class. The Ariel is so far finished that it will require but a fortnight or three weeks to complete her, when it is the intention of her owner to have a little trial sail with the Clio, just to ascertain how matters work. The dimensions of the spars are as follows:—Foremast, 58 feet; maintopmast, 53 feet; maintopomast, 28 feet; maintopmast, 30 feet; mainboom, 45 feet; foregoom, 19 feet 6 inches; maingant, 25 feet; foregoom, 19 feet 6 inches; maingant, 25 feet; foregoom, 19 feet 6 inches; maingant, 26 feet; foregon, 19 feet; spring jibboom, 12 feet; bowsprit, outboard, 20 feet.

leet; flying jibboom, 12 leet; bowsprit, outboard, 20 feet.

Much of the interior joiner work is in position, and, therefore, an idea can be iormed of its character. Evidentity the yacht will be elegantly finished throughout. There will be three staterooms with hardwood trimmings, which will be uphoistered in the prettiest imaginable taste. The saloon will also be in hardwood finish and fitted in the best possible style, while the accommodations for officers and men will not be inierior to any boat of her size in these waters. The Ariel, it is understood, will be added to the New York and Atlantic Yacht Cluo fleets, and, no doubt, will contend for the prize of her class in the coming regatias of these organizations.
